HVU-25 is a compact High voltage unit with variable output voltage. The desired output voltage can be set by using appropriate value of an external resistance. Salient features include high stability, short circuit protection, and variable output feature. It is best suited for High voltage capacitor charging applications. The unit comprises of a high voltage module and a high voltage control module.